Save the Dates!

I have had a fabulous year serving as your president. Our membership is committed to our purpose, and that made my job so much easier. I could count on everyone to jump in and take responsibility for getting all of our stuff done! And did we ever: increased membership, adopted new branding initiative from our national office, awarded scholarships and once again, executed a fabulous Celebrity Luncheon. Through our programs we learned about living in a man's world, the power of volunteering, how local investigative journalists hone their craft and much more happening in our town. And we shared our bounty during the holidays. Pretty awesome year.

I was presented this picture as my parting gift, and I cannot tell you how perfect it is. We talked all year about the power women hold while sitting in circle, and this print illustrates it so well. It now hangs in my dining area, over the table where I sit in circle with friends and family. I've had time to study it, as it greets me for my morning coffee. The women in circle are of all different colors. The robes are of different colors. The hairstyles are varied. Doves encircle their circle. And a multi-colored heart is placed over the circle. Pretty fascinating. The power of circles and diversity.

And on to our next year with Lindsay at the helm. She will develop her own circle. Good luck to her and next year's officers. Let's see just how big this circle can get!

AWC President's Awards

What a year, AWC! At the May Program Meeting, Jo Langston presided over her last meeting as President, and she recognized 4 members for their contributions and dedication to the chapter over the previous year.

Valerie Moreno and Donya Butler each received the “Stepping Up” Award. The “Mother Hen” Award went to Glenys Young, and recognition for “Queen of the Eyeroll” was awarded to Kaley Daniel.

This year, Valerie served as VP of Programs and delivered a stellar group of engaging speakers for the monthly program meetings. Valerie is also chairing the 2018 professional development workshop scheduled for this Fall and entitled “Business of the Future.”

If you spent any time on the AWC Lubbock website, Facebook page or Instagram feed, Donya was the brains and creative behind all as VP of Communications. The advertising agency DesignEnvy, which she co-founded, was also responsible for the Celebrity Luncheon publicity and collateral. You go, girl!

Glenys’s duties are somewhat behind the scenes, but AWC would fall apart without her! She coordinates all of our emails and collects the RSVPs for each and every meeting. Then, she coordinates the meal, seating and A/V services with the Lubbock Women’s Club. Glenys is also a heckuvan editor and managed the Celebrity Luncheon script this year.

And finally, Kaley Daniel serves on the National AWC Board as Vice Chair. Isn’t the photo explanation enough?

Many thanks to Jo Langston, who gracefully served as AWC President during the 2017-2018 year. From the 2017 July planning retreat to the National Conference, through the Celebrity Luncheon, and still today, she embodies the power found when women sit in circle. She is a strong and level-headed leader and mentor, and most importantly, a FUN chic! Jo, we appreciate you and your ongoing commitment to AWC!
